Watch what you heat!

Fire Prevention Week message

Fire Prevention Week is Oct. 8-14, and Caledon's Fire & Emergency Services Department is reminding residents to "watch what you heat" in order to prevent cooking fires. During this year's campaign, firefighters and safety advocates are educating residents about how to prevent cooking fires from starting in the first place.

According to the latest research from the National Fire Protection Association, cooking is the leading cause of home fires. One out of three home fires begins in the kitchen – more than any other place in the home. Cooking fires are also the leading cause of home fire-related injuries.

"When we're called to a fire that started in the kitchen, the residents often tell us that they only left the kitchen for a few minutes," said Caledon Fire Chief Brad Bigrigg. "Sadly, that's all the time it takes for a dangerous fire to start. We hope that Fire Prevention Week will help us reach folks in the community before they've suffered a damaging lesson."

Among the safety tips that firefighters and safety advocates emphasize:

- * Stay in the kitchen when you are frying, grilling, broiling, or boiling food.
 - * Turn off the stove if you have to leave the room – even for a short period of time.
 - * When you are simmering, baking, or roasting food, check it regularly, stay in the home, and use a timer.
 - * If you have young children, use the stove's back burners whenever possible.
 - * Keep children and pets at least three feet away from the stove.
 - * When you cook, wear clothing with tight-fitting sleeves.
 - * Keep potholders, oven mitts, wooden utensils, paper/plastic bags, towels (and anything else that can burn) away from your stovetop.
 - * Clean up food and grease from burners and stovetops.
- Fire Prevention Week is actively supported by fire depart-driven into a tree.

Saturday, Sept. 9, a pickup truck was stolen from the driveway of a Strawberry Hill residence during the early morning hours. The vehicle was recovered in a parking lot off of Coleraine Drive in Bolton, with the keys still in the ignition. The vehicle's radio had been stolen as well as small change and tools.

Theft

Monday, Sept. 4, culprit(s) pulled up to a business operating out of tent on a King Street property in Caledon. Items stolen from the tent include a cash register, scale and portable radio.

Thursday, Sept. 7, several residents in Bolton's south-east area near Allan Drive report their vehicles had been entered during the night hours. Some incidents involved items of value being taken from within.

Friday, Sept. 8, a double gated entry to a McLaughlin Road property was entered by the cutting of a locking system. An auger and a wood chipper were stolen from the property.

Domestic Disputes

Caledon OPP officers responded to 10 domestic disputes between Sept. 4-10. No charges were laid.

ments across the country. This is the 85th year that fire departments have observed Fire Prevention Week, making it the longest-running public health and safety observance on record.

Ignoring infraction

As I was going west on King Street in Bolton July 9 at 2 p.m., approaching the town line, I witnessed a Ministry of the Environment car in front of me going into the left hand turn lane to avoid the car in front of him turning right. Now there was no need for him to do this except to get where he was going a little faster.

Not only was this against the law, but what really caught my eye was the fact that there across the street watching him do this was a police officer. This law enforcement officer actually watched this ministry officer do something they both knew was wrong, so he made a u-turn and followed him for about 15 seconds and turned off. He didn't even turn on his lights. Maybe he had a more important call, maybe he had more pressing worries, but none the less, a person had broken the law and it was witnessed, and forgotten about by a law enforcement officer.
