

CCS hopes Paul Coffey's donation will be a win for community

The ReUstore, at 109 Industrial Rd. in Bolton, often receives donations of sports equipment, but this is a first.

Hockey Hall of Famer and owner of Bolton Toyota Paul Coffey is donating his personal Zamboni to Caledon Community Services (CCS) to be auctioned off at the next ReUstore auction. The live auction will take place this Saturday (Nov. 20) at 11 a.m.

"We are expecting a great turnout from the hockey community," enthused Fiona Ott, manager of fund-raising and communications at CCS. "This functioning Zamboni could be a hockey fan's dream come true on their farmyard ice rink. It could also be an amazing find at a great price for a local arena."

Donations like this one help fund critically important programs and services for the Caledon community. Both Chez Thrift and The ReUstore help support seniors, provide crisis supports for families and children, and provide skills training to those who are unemployed.

The ReUstore, along with its sister store Chez Thrift, are CCS's two Eco-stores. Both contribute to the well-being of the community by diverting treasures from landfill while funding vital programs and services. Both Eco-stores are conveniently located in Bolton. Chez Thrift accepts donations of gently-used clothing, small household goods, crafts and books. The ReUstore will accept all household goods, appliances, electronics, crafts, furniture, building materials, lighting and of course sporting goods.

For advance bids, prior to the Saturday live auction, contact The ReUstore at (905)857-7824 or visit The ReUstore at 109 Industrial Rd. in Bolton.

You could be the owner of this Zamboni, thanks to Paul Coffey of Bolton Toyota.
